DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. It recites the phrase “healthy financial practices”. One of ordinary skill in the art of financial management would not know specifically what constitutes such practices.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over

Department of Labor and Workforce Development, Unemployment Insurance, hereinafter, Insurance in view of US 5,966,693 Burgess.

As to Claim 13, discloses the invention substantially as claimed, including in a method for managing a consumer's unemployment risk (Whole Document), the steps of:

receiving funds to fund unemployment insurance (page 2, para. 1); allocating a first portion of the funds to a defined unemployment insurance vehicle based at least in part on employment data (page 2, para. 2); and dynamically adjusting the allocation in response at least in part to one or more changes in the employment data (page 2, para3).

Insurance does not specifically disclose additional limitations of allocating a second portion of the funds to a defined savings contribution vehicle and dynamically adjusting the allocation between the first portion and the second portion in response at least in part to one or more changes in the experience data. Burgess discloses allocation of funds between an insurance program and savings vehicle at Col. 2, lines 36-67 and allocation between the first portion and the second portion in response at least in part to one or more changes in the experience data at Col. 2, lines 55-67. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the teachings of Insurance to include the savings aspects of Burgess because this would provide a method to for supplying unemployment benefits while also encouraging savings, as disclosed by Burgess at Col. 1, lines 19-27.

Regarding Claim 14, Insurance discloses payment for eligible living expenses during an unemployment period at page 1, para. 1.

Regarding Claim 15, Insurance discloses benefits after involuntary unemployment at para. 1.

As to Claim 16, Insurance does not specifically disclose that a component of the insurance policy is an FDIC insured financial instrument. Official Notice is taken that it was old and well known to use FDIC insured instruments for investment because of their safety. For instance, Certificates of Deposit in federally insured banks provide a benefit of bearing low risk of loss, given the backing of the United States government. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use such instruments to minimize risk of loss to an insured person in the combination of Insurance and Burgess.

Regarding Claim 17, Burgess discloses non-FDIC financial instruments as a component of an insurance policy at Col. 2, lines 36-37.

As to Claim 18, Burgess discloses the limitations at Col. 2, lines 36-39.

As to Claim 19, Burgess discloses monitoring consumer use of the financial product at Col. 2, lines 36-54; the disclosed calculation of interest on funds borrowed against inherently requires such monitoring and measurement.

As to Claims 20-21, Burgess discloses the limitations at Col. 9, lines 54-62.

Regarding Claims 22-23, see the discussion of Claims 18 and 16-17 respectively.

As to Claims 24-28, allocation by the consumer of the remainder portion would have been obvious to allow the insured to optimize the financial benefit from amounts available to invest or provide benefit.

Regarding Claim 29, see the discussion of Claims 1 and 20. The last phrase of Claim 29 equates to providing economic benefit to an insured with favorable claims experience by premium reduction; this is old and well known in the business of insurance.

As to Claim 30, increasing a rate of return on an investment was an old and well known way to provide benefit to an investor, e.g. providing more interest income.

Claims 31-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Department of Labor and Workforce Development, Unemployment Insurance, hereinafter, Insurance in view of US 5,966,693 Burgess and further in view of US 2002/013717 Ando et al.

As to Claims 31-32, Insurance does not specifically disclose that funds are received on a periodic (monthly) basis to pay for an insurance component. Ando discloses this limitation at para. 7. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Insurance to include the monthly premiums of Ando because this would provide predictable payments for the insured and a predictable revenue stream for the issuer of the integrated financial product.

Regarding Claim 33, Ando discloses rewarding a customer for proper behavior at para. 17. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Insurance with this teaching because this would reward customer's for the proper behavior of timely payments.

As to Claim 34, see the discussion of Claims 29 and 33.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed March 20, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The rejection under 35 U.S.C. 101 is withdrawn.

Applicants' argument regarding the rejection under 35 USC 112, 2nd para. is not persuasive. Applicants refer to an Internet search where the phrase "healthy financial practices" was found. Applicants provide no evidence to provide insight as to why one of ordinary skill in financial arts would clearly know what constitutes “healthy financial practices”. Additionally, such practices would change over time and are thus indefinite.

At pages 7-8, Applicants argue against the combination of references. Applicants argue that Insurance discloses a program provided by a governmental entity, but fails to identify any limitation lacking from the reference as cited. Insurance clearly demonstrates elements of unemployment insurance; it happens to be provided through a governmental entity, but private unemployment insurance is well known. Applicant appears to argue against the combination by citing differences between the references, but identifies no antagonism between them based on the governmental nature of Insurance. Applicants’ argument, if applied to the elements of the claimed invention, would make it also appear unworkable.

The rejections are maintained.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Art Unit: 3624
